IMPORTANT NEWS.

Choyenne, Oct. 8.—The following has just been received from Maj. Gillis at Rawlins:

Rawlins, Oct. 8.—The mail carrier from Snake River is just in. He reports that Merritt reached Payne's command the afternoon of Monday, and after a fight in which thirty-seven Indians were killed, found them all night.

A colored cavalry company joined Payne last Friday night, losing all their horses (two) in doing so.

The mail carrier knows nothing about the condition of the officers and men of Company H, 14th regiment. They were at least twenty-four hours behind Merritt's command. (Signed) GILLIS.

Choyenne, Oct. 8.—A courier from the front brings the following from an officer with Payne's command:

"Battlefield, Milk River, Col., Oct. 3, 6 p. m.—A courier will leave some time to-night with dispatches, if possible. Indians still surround us, and are pouring in an effective fire from the commanding bluffs at a distance of 500 yards, having a cross-fire upon our position, which was broken lastly on the first day of the fight. All our horses and all but twelve mules have been killed. We shelled them as best we could with our guns, but to no purpose. Capt. Dodge and Lieut. Hughes, with company D, 9th cavalry, came to our rescue on Wednesday, and at daybreak, after a fort-night's march of 35 miles, from Bear River. Cheer upon cheer rent the air from our trenches when it was ascertained who was coming. A full in the firing enabled them to come and shelter their horses as well as possible, taking to the fortifications quickly, when the attack redoubled its fury, and had the heights been accessible, Capt. Dodge would have charged them with his company, while we covered them from our rifle pits.

"But this, being utterly impossible, the ascent being nearly perpendicular, all we could do was to keep a good look out from the loop holes, and return the fire when any Indian showed his head. This, however, was a very rare occurrence, as the Indians have rifle pits and loop holes. Before dark every horse but three of Capt. Dodge's command was shot down.

"A very fortunate thing for us has been the fact that the Indians have left us unmolested to-night, with only an occasional shot to keep us to our pits. We have been at great risk to haul off our dead animals every night, otherwise the stench would be intolerable. A sally is made every night for water a distance of 200 yards from our intrenchments. Night before last Private Erer, of company E, was shot in the face while out with a party after water. The Indians were only seventy yards away, and were driven off by a volley from the guard and trench.

"Capt. Dodge brought us cheering news, that our dispatches had reached Bear River safely, and would undoubtedly reach Rawlins. We have been counting the hours which it will probably take for relief to reach us. We all agree that Gen. Merritt, from Fort Russell, with three companies of cavalry and other available troops, will be ordered to finish the campaign.

"The field of battle was admirably chosen for defense by the Indians, and had it not been for Maj. Thornburgh's advance guard, commanded by Lieut. Cherry, discovering the ambush, the entire command would have been annihilated. He saw a small party of Indians disappear over a hill half a mile in front, and at once divided his party to reconnoiter, and discovered them when he had flanked their position about 200 yards.

"Cherry rode back at full speed with two or three men who were with him, and notified Maj. Thornburgh, who had already made the descent into a deep ravine which was intended to engulf the command. The Indians were dismounted and lying all along the crest of a high, steep ridge, not a hundred yards from the point where the deadly assaults would have commenced. The troops were withdrawn a short distance, dismounted and deployed in line of battle to await an attack by the Indians, but Cherry was here ordered by Thornburgh to take a detachment of fifteen picked men and make a reconnaissance and communicate with the Indians if possible, as it was thought that they only desired to oppose his approach to their agency and would parley or have a big talk, as they could be communicated with. Cherry moved out a gallop with his men from the right flank and noticed a like movement of about twenty Indians from the left of the Indian hostiles' position. He approached to within a couple hundred yards of the Indians and took off his hat and waved it but the response was a shot fired at him wounding a man of his party and killing his horse. This was the first shot and was followed by a volley from the Indians. The work had now begun in earnest, and seeing the advantage of the position he held, Cherry dismounted his detachment and deployed along the crest of the hill, to prevent the Indians flanking his position, or to cover the retreat if found necessary to retire upon the wagon train, which was coming up slowly alongside by Lieut. Paddock's company D, 5th cavalry.

"Orders were sent to the pack wagons to cover them with the companies guarding them. The two companies in advance were Capt. Payne, company F, 5th cavalry, and Capt. Lawrence, company E, 8th cavalry, which were dismounted and deployed as skirmishers, Capt. Payne on the left and Capt. Lawrence on the right from Cherry's position. He could see that the Indians were trying to cut him off from the wagons, and at once sent word to Maj. Thornburgh, who then withdrew the line slowly, keeping the Indians in check till opposite the point which the men had taken. The Indians concentrating to cut off his retreat, Capt. Payne, with company F, 5th cavalry, was ordered to charge the hill, which he did in gallant style, his horse being shot under him and several of his men wounded.

"The Indians having been driven from this point, the company was ordered on the wagon train. Maj. Thornburgh then gave orders to Cherry to hold his position and cover Capt. Lawrence's retreat, who was ordered to fall back slowly with the led horses of his company. Cherry, called for volunteers of twenty men, who responded promptly, and fought with desperation. Their names will be given in later dispatches as nearly every man was wounded before he reached camp and two men killed. Cherry brought every wounded man in with him. Capt. Linson, a brave old veteran, displayed the greatest coolness and courage during this retreat, sending up ammunition to Cherry's men, when once they were nearly without it.

"Maj. Thornburgh started back to the wagon train after giving his final orders to Capt. Payne to charge the hill, and to Capt. Lawrence and Lieut. Cherry to cover the retreat. He must have been shot dead when barely half way there, and his body was seen by one of Capt. Lawrence's men. Life was extinct and he was lying on his face. Capt. Payne, then in command, at once set about having wounded horses shot for breast works, dismantling the wagons of boxes, mules of bedding, corn and flour sacks which were piled up for fortifications. Picks and shovels were used vigorously for digging entrenchments. In the meantime a galling fire was concentrated upon the command from all the surrounding bluffs which commanded the position. Not a soul could be seen, but the incessant crack of their Sharp and Manchester rifles dealt fearful destruction among horses and men. The groans of the dying and the agonizing cries of the wounded told what fearful havoc was being made among the determined and desperate command, every man bound to sell his life as dearly as possible. About this time a great danger was apprehended at a frightfully rapid pace. The red devils at the beginning of the fight had set fire to the dry grass and to the sage brush to the windward of our position, and as it came sweeping down toward us, the flames leaping high into the air and immense volumes of smoke following on to engulf us, it was a sight to make the stoutest heart quail, and the funds were waiting ready to give us a volley as soon as we were driven from shelter. Now it reaches the flank and blankets, houses and empty packs were freely used to extinguish the flames. Some of the wagons were set on fire, which required all the force possible to smother it, as no water could be obtained and the smoke was suffocating, but the fire passed and we withstood our position. Meantime a continued volley is pouring upon us. Capt. Payne is wounded a second time. First Sergeant Dolan, of company F, was instantly killed. McKinley and McKee were also killed, and many others wounded. Our greatest danger now is past. The men have now mostly covered themselves but the poor horses and mules are constantly falling about us. Just about sundown a charge was made but repulsed, the Indians trying to drive off some of our horses which had broken loose. The attack ceased at dark, and soon every man was at work enlarging the trenches, hauling out the dead horses, caring for the wounded and burying the dead.

At daylight the attack was resumed and firing at sharp shooters has been kept up every day since and occasion all at night sending us to our pits in a scramble. This is the 5th day of our siege but we are determined to hold it if it takes a month for succor to reach us, but we are confident that Gen. Merritt, who is upon the lip of every one, is on the road to rescue us.

Total killed, 12; total wounded, 43.
LATER.

Oct. 4, 6 p. m.—No courier could be gotten off last night, owing to the constant firing of the Indians into camp. The moon came up an hour after dark, and a volley was poured in at once. Our party went after water, and was unmolested, and had our little stockade all cleared for action before the firing was resumed. As I write this dispatch the bullets are whistling over the top of the trench. They often strike the grain sacks a few inches above our heads, but we are deep enough to be comparatively safe.

Later.—Oct. 5, 6 p. m.—"Hurrah! Hurrah!"—Merritt has come, and the surrounding hills resound with the cheers of welcome. A courier goes out at once.

Only two cases were reported at Memphis Tuesday, and no additional deaths. The Howards sent out 17 nurses.

A suspicious case developed at Withe depot, twenty miles south of Memphis.

The Colorado Election.
Denver, Col., Oct. 8.—The election in this state to-day was for a supreme judge and county officers. The day passed very quietly, not more than half a vote being polled. Returns came in very slowly, but the few indications are that the republicans have carried the election.

Gov. Coult, chairman of the republican state committee, estimates majority for Beck for supreme judge, at nearly 5,000, a gain of 2,000 over last year's vote.

In Arapahoe county the republicans have elected every man, as also in Gilman, Weld and Laraine.

In Laraine the democrats fall behind last year's vote about 200.

There was little interest in the contest, as the state ticket contained but one name, that of Beck.

HUNTINGTON HAPPENINGS.

A Lively Letter from a Lively Town.

Lectures, Temperance, Legal-Seminal, Deaths, Foot Races, Burial-Glories and Weddings.

(Correspondence of the SENTINEL.)
Huntington, Ind., Oct. 7.—For the past few days Huntington has been somewhat lively in the line of lectures and sermons. Rev. Marine was in attendance at the Methodist quarterly meeting held at this place on Saturday and Sunday last, and delivered several powerful and eloquent sermons before large congregations. And then Mrs. Croley was here and spoke to crowded houses on Friday and Saturday evenings, and also on Sunday.

Her meetings were well attended, and her remarks drew forth many complimentary speeches from our citizens. Francis Murphy, the blue-ribbon man, was here but a short time ago, and strove to kindle the blaze of temperance into a higher flame; and, speaking of temperance, we must not forget to say that the excitement has by no means died; meetings are held every Sunday in the court house, and when there is no house talent our own orators step into the harness and pull in a way that astonishes many.

The circuit court convenes on next Monday, and then there will be exciting times. Many cases of an exciting nature are on the docket, and there will be some howling among the natives at some of the grand jury's work. Sensations have been rather numerous, not only in the city, but out among the farmers and country people, who are generally considered the most pious of all persons, and they will receive fair attention from His Honor Judge Slack and twelve true and impartial men.

Just lately there comes a report of a case among the good people of one of our townships, wherein one man is charged with being just a little too intimate with one of the fair sex, and the jury will probably pass their judgment on his case, in which direction time alone can tell, assisted a little, perhaps, by some of our legal doctors.

Last night a lively foot race took place between one of our citizens and a transient laborer. There was no money put up, but not sufficient time given to sell pools; but the workingman had a strong desire to thump said other party, and the said party was not exactly in that mood. All that saved him, however, was the fact of his being possessed of fleet locomotive powers, and an opportunity to step rather hurriedly into a convenient store room.

A great many deaths have taken place among our citizens, in the city, and in the neighboring country. No stated disease has made its appearance, but almost every attack seems to prove fatal. Among our most influential and trustworthy citizens the silent hand of death has been moving with its never failing life-destroying touch.

A few minor burglaries are continually taking place. In no case have any great amounts been taken, that is, since we were favored with a circus, but little petty robberies of no great consequence, and yet sufficient to give the parties, should they be caught, a short vacation under the care of the obliging warden of the northern prison.

Several weddings are reported as likely to be consummated this fall and winter, but of these we shall speak at another time. ISRAEL HIX.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE DANITES.
The attendance at the Academy last evening was not large, but the beautiful and thrilling drama of "The Danites" was presented as faithfully and conscientiously as if the house had been crowded to its utmost capacity. Lack of space forbids a detailed criticism, but we can safely pronounce the entertainment the very best thing we have had in the dramatic line this season. Mr. and Mrs. Rankin and Mr. Sheridan displayed rare histrionic ability. The audience was wild with delight and enthusiasm.

To-night this company will make its second and last appearance in this city, and should be liberally patronized. General admission 50 cents; reserved seats 75 cents.

LOUISE POMEROY.

This gifted artist will open at the Academy Friday evening, in "Cymbeline." Seats are now on sale at George Fowler's.

A BAND OF INDIANS.
A new and novel feature of the Buffalo Bill Combination this season, is the introduction of a genuine band of Indian chiefs from the Pawnee and Ponca tribes, direct from their reservation in the Indian Territory, under the immediate charge of Mr. W. F. Cody; also Master Eddie Burgess, or Perky-shash, the boy chief of the Pawnees, the youngest chief of which any record is given among the entire Indian nation. His rendering of the "Wolf Dance" and the "Horse Dance" is truly realistic.

A Card.
To the Editor of the SENTINEL:
Oct. 8, 1879.—I noticed in last night's SENTINEL an advertisement of the Taylor's Buggie sale, as skeleton, that in connection with other amusements, that Com. Foote and Fairy Queen would appear! This is quite a mistake, and you will please in the future, to leave out their names in that advertising card, by their request.

Respectfully, D. NESTLE, Father of Com. Foote and Fairy Queen.

pagation of parliament from the first of November was determined upon.
If any date for the call of parliament was fixed the fact has not yet become public. In the discussions the policy of the government concerning affairs in Afghanistan was foreboded.The power of the government will be brought to bear heavily upon mutineers and disturbers.

SPORTING NOTES.

A woman's walking match begins at San Francisco to-night.John Hogan, of New York, challenges any man in the United States to walk fifty hours without eating, drinking and sleeping.Chester Park, Cincinnati, races, last day: 220 class won by Charles Ford in three straight heats; Lew Scott, 2d; Duven, 3d, and Lucy, 4th; time 2:23, 2:26, 2:23. The 250 class was won by Silverton in three straight heats; Nielyregon, 2d; Don Quixote, 3d; time 2:27, 2:29, 2:29.The interest in the pedestrian walk for the O'Leary belt continues, and the garden is constantly crowded.
Boyle, Castello, McLean and Boeh-man withdrew on Tuesday, the latter after walking 100 miles and one lap.
This leaves but nineteen of the original thirty-five on the track.Nashville races, second day: The first race, a three-quarter-mile dash, was won, by length, by Good Night, Bentitude 2nd, Col. Sprague 3rd; time, 1:16. The second race, the Rock City handicap, two-mile heats, was won by Lagentie, Cammie F. 2nd, Ben Hull and Omega distanced; time, 8:48, 8:40. The third race, mile and an eighth dash, was won by Bestade, Lillie R. 2nd, Victim 3rd; time, 1:59.George Hazel, when he was informed that the backers of the trotting horse Harry Gilbert had not presented themselves to make arrangements for the proposed match, gave vent to his feelings as follows: "So it seems I can't get on anything.
There's Rowell, I won't make a go with me in this country for an untold mile. See 'ow he was beaten in the last match! Put him to the race before he was four days in the country. But he'll 'ave that belt yet—see! I don't."At San Francisco, Tuesday, considerable excitement was occasioned by Chenoweth failing to return on the track, and it was rumored that he had been poisoned to prevent him making 400 miles, for which he is heavily backed. The fact is said to be, however, that his trouble is caused by the excessive use of lotion on his feet, and the skin being broken, the poisonous element in the lotion getting in to strychnine. An antidote was administered, relieving him, but the occurrence has spoiled his chance.Jerome Park races, Tuesday: The Champaqua stakes, three-quarter mile dash, were won by Citia, Beata 2nd, Queen's Own 3rd; time 1:18. The third race was for the grand national handicap sweepstakes, two miles and a quarter. Two started, Gen. Phillips and Ferido. Gen. Phillips won by a length; time 4:07. The fourth race was for a purse of $400, three-quarters of a mile dash, and had six starters. Wallenstein won by a length; Lady Middleton 2nd, Oracle 3rd; time 1:18. The fifth race was a handicap steeple chase, and was won by Deadhead, Derby 2nd, Disturbance 3rd; time 4:27.The Missing Balloons.
Louis Faber, an engineer on the Lake Shore Railroad, states that a week ago Monday night, while at Miller's station, he observed a large balloon directly over head, apparently less than a mile away, going toward Lake Michigan, which is only half a mile from the station. John Butta, his fireman, also saw the balloon and with Faber watched it out of sight.
It was undoubtedly the Wise balloon.S. L. Partridge, of Pontiac, Mich., says he saw a large balloon, well up, pass that city Thursday, going from west to east. He could see the basket, but could not make out the inmates.
He thinks it was Wise's balloon.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

Rev. Herbert B. Hayden is on trial at New Haven, Ct., for the murder of Mury Stannard.The Spanish brig Delagouta was wrecked off Mobile Tuesday. Two lives were lost.Treasurer Renfro, of Georgia, has been acquitted by the senate of the charges preferred against him.A carpenter known as "Doc" Robbins, was killed by falling from a new building at Land, near Columbia City, Monday night.The officers and directors of the consolidated bank of Montreal, have been indicted for making false statements of the bank's condition.At Elizabeth, N. J., Monday, Mrs.
Hennessy left her babe in a cot, alongside of which was a pail full of water.
The child rolled headforemost into the water and was drowned.The case of Wm. Rowing, for the murder of Lewis Spencer and his four children, in Clark county, Mo., in 1877 is now on trial. He feigns the utmost unconcern as to the result of his trial.Wm. Kidd had a tooth extracted by Dr. Dows, at Jersey City, two weeks ago. The bleeding from the cavity left in the jaw continued despite the efforts of several physicians, until last Monday night Kidd died from exhaustion caused by loss of blood.At Lafayette Station, N. J., Monday night, Frank McEnany, who was standing on the platform of a passenger car, was thrown on the railroad bed by the velocity of the train on a curve. Another train then came along and cut off his head and arms, leaving them ten feet from the body.At Norwich, Conn., the body of Mrs. Wm. B. Riddle was disinterred Tuesday and portions of the internal organs taken for critical analysis. Mr.
Riddle was brought before the court charged with the murder of his wife by poisoning. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for trial without bail.Robert W. Steele, book-keeper for Isaac Smith, Sons & Co., umbrella manufacturers of New York, is reported to have disappeared with $60,- 000 of the firm's money. It is said that the firm has been obliged to suspend on account of this loss, and is endeavoring to effect a compromise with its creditors.

The Massachusetts democratic ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, W. P. Plunkett; secretary of state, Gen. M. T. Donahoe; treasurer and receiver, Gen. David N.
Skilling; auditor, W. R. Field; altorney general, Richard Olney. A.
G. Abbott, P. A. Collins, George W.
Gill and Reuben Noble were elected delegates at large to the national convention. The platform reaffirms the platform of 1876; congratulates the people upon its ratification by the people at the polls; denounces the presidential fraud; favors a strict construction of the constitutional grant which shall prevent encroachments either by the state or federal power; condemns the abridgment of suffrage in Massachusetts; demands amendment of the registry laws; calls for a reform in laws regulating the levy of taxes; opposes class legislation; favors all measures for the elevation of labor; opposes the further borrowing of money by states, cities or towns, denounces government by bonds and commissions; arraigns the administration of the state for extravagance and corruption; endorses the course of the democrats in congress in reforming abuses, enforcing economies, and in fighting for free elections and intelligent juries; denounces the election laws and the use of the army at the polls; condemns the presidential vetoes, declares that gold and silver are the only money of the constitution, denounces favoritism in the handling of public funds; holds the republican party responsible for the destruction of our fishery and ship building interests; protests against sumptuary laws and various abuses in the state government; and calls upon every democrat in Massachusetts to support the ticket and platform of the convention.

FIRE.

A fire at Oxford, Butler county, O., destroyed about $10,000 worth of property. The largest losers are John Ferguson, stove and tin store; Perry Kuem, livery stable; James Greer, factory; Love & Butler, carriage factory; Gath & Merrill, furniture. Insurance light.

LABOR NOTES.

The striking spinners of Fall River voted to resume work in the Troy, Richard Borden and the Durfy mills.
Twelve hundred Chicago cigar makers struck Tuesday, but their demands being complied with returned to work.AN INCOME WITHOUT CARE.
By the combination method of operating in stocks a handsome income can be returned without care. Capital in any amount from $10 to $50,000 may be used with equal profit. Success is assured by this system. Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, New York, pool the orders of thousands of customers, of various sizes into one vast amount, and execute it by the most successful management, dividing profits monthly. Each shareholder thus obtains all the advantages of the largest capital and experienced skill, and the percentage of profit is very great; $100 will pay $100 in 30 days; $250 will return $1,250 or 75% percent on the stock, and so on, as the market varies. A handsome income can be obtained from the Rock Island (Ill.) Daily Argus, made $10,000 on an investment of $20,000 in October. Hundreds of others are doing even better. Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, New York, have a "two merrings" rule for success in stock operations and full information, so that any one can deal in stocks. All kinds of bonds and stocks are wanted. New government bonds supplied. Deposit received. Apply to Lawrence & Co., Bankers, 15 Exchange Place, N. Y. City.

MADCAP VIOLET.

BY WILLIAM BLACK.

Young Romeo was altogether overwhelmed, blushed, bewildered. What great condescension was this—or was she but toying with him; she, the full-grown woman still fancying that he was but a youth? There was more of the girl than of the woman, however, in the delight of her face, in the eager fashion in which she insisted on showing them where Lady North was posted."Oh, Violet, how lovely you look in that dress!" Mrs. Warrenner could not help saying, in an under-tone."Can we get up the stairs?" the girl said. "Lady North is on the landing.
Mr. Drummond, shall we lead the way?"Surely Romeo and Juliet should have gone together. Romeo was rather silent when he saw that beautiful creature in the white satin and pearls upon with the tall figure in sombre red.For a few seconds the crush on the stairs kept them jammed in and motionless at one point of the ascent.
Violet turned round; Romeo was just beneath; and she said to him, with a tender sweetness,"How can't I be better, tell me and wherefore?"The orchard walls are high, and hard to climb;
And the place death, considering what that hour
If any of my kinsmen find thee here."He could not answer—his face flushed red with embarrassment; but fortunately another upward movement on the part of the crowd carried them on again and hid his vexation."She has studied her part better than you have," said Mrs. Warrenner, with a quiet smile."How could I know?" said he, almost angrily. "I did not know she would be Juliet. I suppose these are the speeches Juliet makes. And one looks such a fool.""But surely you know the pretty things that Romeo says to her?" said his companion."No, I don't," he said, gloomily.
"Poetry was never much in my way.
But—if you know, Mrs. Warrenner —couldn't you give me a hint or two?""I think my brother has taken up your part," said she; and then, independently, they heard that Mephistopheles and Juliet were addressing each other in very beautiful language. George Miller leaped to the conclusion that there was a great deal of exaggerated and literary sentiment about Shaks-peare; and that, in any case, theatrical stuff should be kept for the theatre.On the landing, and in a recess so that her guests could pass by her into the hall-room, they found Lady North, who was very dignified and very courteous. Her oldest daughter, Anatolia, stood by her. What made young Mr.
Miller ask this rather plain young lady, so that his companions could distinctly overhear, for the next words she had free? He had not asked Violet to dance."They looked in on the wonderful assemblage of picturesque figures—certain groups of them here and there in motion—the sound of music all through the place—the brilliant colors and diverse forms almost bewildering the eye. The fair Juliet, her hand resting on the arm of the tall and sombre Mephistopheles, showed him a certain little pink card.""I have not given away one dance yet," said she."Do you wish me to ask you to dance?" he replied."Yes," said he, "that is what I should prefer. But I am not greedy.
Whenever you wish to cheer up the drooping spirits of your Romeo, I will set you free. What have you said to him, Violet?"She turned round and regarded the young man with some wonder. He was certainly not looking well pleased."Come," she said, "I will take you all round by another way to the balcony, and you will see every thing from there. That will be better than fighting across the room. But perhaps you wish to dance, Mr. Miller?""No, thank you," said he, gruffly.
She would take no notice of his manner. She said, gently,"If you will follow me, then, we can go round to the balcony, and have a nice cool place almost to ourselves.
Shall we go, Mr. Drummond?""I am no pilot," said he, in a tragic voice."Yet were that as far As that vast shore washed with the farthest sea,
I would adventure for such merchandise.""This but thy name that is mine enemy!" she retorted, with a light laugh, as she again took his arm and led him away."Thou art thyself, though Mephistophiles.
What's Mephistopheles? It is not hand, Nor arm, nor face, nor any other part Belonging to a man. Oh, be some other name!""We appear to have got behind the scenes of a theatre," said young Mr.
Miller, with savage contempt, to his companion."Don't you think it is very amusing?" said Mrs. Warrenner, in her quiet way. "To see the girl play Juliet so well? How delightfully gracious her manner is!""I think when you are on the stage, you ought to be on the stage," said he, bluntly; "and when you're in a private house, you ought to be in a private house. I don't see the fun of all that fantasy."Certainly the small room through which they were now passing was, in one respect, like the gloomy corridors "behind the scenes." It was dark enough, but they could, at all events, see that in the centre of the room a table was placed which had a white cloth on it."Isn't Lady North kind?" said Violet. "She has given me this room for us four, so that as soon as the others go down to supper we can have ours in here, in quiet and coolness.""By whose direction found'st thou out this place?" asked her companion."Please, Mephistopheles-Romeo, to keep to your own speeches," she observed, with some dignity. "That one belongs to me."From this small room they went out on the balcony, which was hung round with pink and white, and lighted up with Chinese lanterns; and, passing along, they came once more in sight of the brilliant hall-room, at the open windows of which they now stood.
Two or three others had discovered this quiet retreat—opportunity for conversation as well as agreeable account of its coolness; but somehow these dusky figures loved the darkness rather than the light, and Violet's party, assembled in front of one of the windows, was left pretty much to itself.She set to work to exorcise the demon—was it of some ridiculous jealousy?—that had got possession of this young man. She had not much trouble.
Who could have withstood the bright, frank smile, and the friendly look of her beautiful dark eyes? Besides, was he not in Juliet's own balcony—not looking up to her, but actually with her—while there was no petulant nurse to call her?"Don't you mean to dance at all tonight?" said she.

"No."

"Not even with me?"

"Your card is full," said he, shortly.
"That is not a joke," she said. "I asked Mr. Drummond to make sure I should have plenty of time to spend with my special friends, and he took the whole night, and I am not sorry.
I fancy, Mr. Drummond, you think that dancing would not accord with the dignity of Mephistopheles, don't you?""Nor yet with his age," said he.
"Dancing is for young Romeo. Young Romeo, why are you lounging idly here?"The younger man was looking rather wistfully at Violet. He was beginning to be sorry for his silliness. Would she forgive him? Was her kindness real? Or was she only making fun?
"Will you dance this waltz with me?" said he, in desperation; and she assented at once.They passed into the hall-room.
"I thought you were to dance with Anatolia," she said, with a smile."She had to stay by Lady North," he answered. "I—I am very glad."
"You ought not to say such things; she is my sister. And why did you ask her?""I don't know," said he; and presently they were lost in the whirling crowd.James Drummond and his sister had watched them enter the room. They were a sufficiently handsome couple, these two young people, as they stood there for a moment together—the slim, square-shouldered young fellow in blue velvet and silver, with his fine gratitude and pleasure; and the tall, shapely, proud-looking girl, whose hair seemed bluer than the raven's wing in contrast with the gleaming white of her dress. After that they were visible but from time to time in the whirl of wonderful shapes and colors that moved to the light, rapid, and harmonious music."That is the beautiful time of life," Drummond said to his sister, as they watched these two go by. "Youth, health, bright spirits, the joy of living instead of merely looking at it—and yet there is some sadness about the spectacle. Not to them, of course; only to the looker-on. They are not thinking of to-morrow, nor yet of ill-laid age, nor of any doubt or disquiet.
Look at them—don't you wish you could make this moment eternity for them, and prolong that delight of rapid motion for ever and ever?""I do not," his sister said, promptly.
"I don't know what you mean, James; but you are always coupling these two together, as if they must necessarily marry.""Why not?" said he, rather absently."You know very well: the notion of a proud, high-spirited girl like Violet marrying a young man like that—who has got no more imagination, or feeling, or mind than a block of wood!""You are never fair to young Miller, Sarah. He is quite as intelligent as most young men; and he is far more willing to improve himself than any I know."

"He shouldn't marry Violet."

"You used to like him well enough."

"Yes; because I never dreamed that any thing serious would come of that foolish adventure of theirs. But now I am sure he means to marry her if she will let him; and I think she has a sort of tender, half-romantic interest in him at which she laughs, but which is likely to make mischief.""That is how you describe marriage?" said he.But at this moment the two young people came back—flushed, eager, gay in spirits; Romeo in especial being delighted, and showing his delight by being anxious to share it. Mrs. Warrenner must really go in and dance.
The flashing by of the different characters was wonderful. Had she seen Henry VIII. go down? What was this perfume they were burning?Then he was anxious that Violet should give him the next dance, and the next dance, and the next again.
But she refused. She was not going to desert her friends. When this present dance was over, she invited Mephistopheles to walk with her through the room that they might look at the crowd together; and Romeo and Margaret followed, the former quite glad and contented now. It is true that he had more rivals than ever. Violet North was known to but few of her step-mother's guests; but the appearance of the girl was too striking to escape unnoticed; and there were all sorts of applications to Lady Northfor an introduction to the beautiful young lady dressed as Juliet. That young lady was exceedingly courteous to these successive strangers; but how could she promise them a dance, seeing that her card was full to the very last line?So the night went by, in music, laughter, and gladness; and they had supper all by themselves in that little room, the fair Juliet being queen of the feast; and Lady North, sitting there for a time, and said some pretty things about Margaret's dress; and Violet's father looked in on them, and said to young Miller, "Well, sir, been running away with any more school-girls lately?" As for the young lady herself, the light on her face was something to look at; it seemed to one sitting there that youth had nothing more beautiful to give than such a night."What do you think of it all?" she said to Mr. Drummond, when they went back into the hall room, to look on at a slow and stately minuet that was being danced by a few experts.
"Don't you think it is lovely?""I am trying to think what you think of it," said he. "To me the chief delight of it is the delight I see in your face. I have never seen a girl at her first ball before; it is a good thing to see."

"Why do you speak so sadly?"
